Administrative Regulation: 8.3.10ADR

Campaigning & Political Activity of Employees

Statement

University employees are encouraged to fully and freely exercise their constitutional right to vote and express their personal opinions regarding political candidates, as well as local, state and national programs, initiatives and referendums.

However, as a public agency, Eastern Kentucky University has an obligation to be neutral in election processes and may not use University Property or University Assets on a preferential basis to support political campaigns or candidates. Employees may only engage in Political and Campaigning Activities, run for public office, or hold public office if they are able to do so within the applicable law and within University policies, while also meeting the obligations of their position at the University. Furthermore, the resources of the University cannot be used in the exercise of these rights. Employees should consult University Policy 1.2.1, Code of Ethics, to ensure their participation in Campaigning or Political Activity is not a conflict of interest or commitment that may infringe on their ability to perform their official University duties and meet their responsibilities with maximum effectiveness and objectivity.

This Regulation affirms the right of all employees to freedom of speech and political association, but such rights shall not be exercised in the employee's official, University capacity. This Regulation further affirms a faculty member's right to academic freedom, as that is defined in law and in University Policy 4.1.1, Academic Freedom.

This Regulation relates solely to individual conduct and does not address the scope of employee conduct on behalf of the University.

Entities Affected

All University Employees.

Guidelines

I. Political Activities of Employees

Employees shall not participate in Political Activities or solicit participation of others in Political Activities on University Property either during normal business hours, at official University functions, or at any time when using University Assets unless space is procured in their individual capacity in accordance with University Policy 7.1.1, Scheduling of University Facilities and Outdoor Space.

University employees shall refrain from the following conduct, which is a non-exhaustive list:

- Promoting or opposing any partisan political activity, political party, or candidate for public office (local, state, or national), including oneself, during regular University working hours or at official University functions
- Depicting their personal beliefs as representative of the University
- Using their position of authority to solicit financial contributions, request campaign assistance, or influence the vote or political activities of their subordinates and/or students
- Using University Assets to invite individuals to fundraisers or to solicit campaign donations
- Using University Assets to advocate for or oppose political candidates or to coordinate Political Activity
- Using University Assets to advocate for or against legislation or government regulations

Employees of the Office of Government and Community Relations are exempt from the restrictions noted above to the extent that such conduct is being executed pursuant to their official duties on behalf of the University. However, these employees will not allow personal beliefs, political considerations, or unethical considerations to influence or interfere with any advice, counsel, or services rendered. Additionally, faculty may discuss relevant political matters in classroom discussions and in other instruction so long as appropriate regard is given to the context and subject of the class.

Political activities not impacted by this Regulation include:

- EKU employee interviews with media and presentations to community, academic, student, governmental, or other groups in their capacity as a subject matter experts
- Overseeing and promoting student internships with political campaigns or elected officials
- Advising student groups
- Discussing political issues in academic settings as appropriate

When not performing their University responsibilities, employees may engage in the following Political Activities, which include but are not limited to:

- Volunteering on political campaigns
- Soliciting campaign donations
- Posting on personal social media sites about political issues and candidates, though employees should consult EKV regulation 11.2.5, Social Media Communications, and never use EKV's name in promotion of a political party or candidate
- Any political activity done on personal time in an employee's personal capacity

II. Campaigning Activities of Employees

To the extent employees engage in any form of communication to include but not limited to correspondence, e-mails, social media, television or audio for the purposes of campaigning, they must not use University letterhead or Assets, and they must make it clear they are acting in their private capacities and do not represent the views or position of the University. Regarding social media, employees may not use University-affiliated social media accounts to express or provide support for particular candidates. When using their personal social media accounts, University employees are encouraged to use a disclaimer in their bios conveying that their posts and the opinions expressed within them are their own and do not express the position or views of Eastern Kentucky University.

Other University Assets include but are not limited to physical facilities, supplies, materials, equipment, telephones, printing or copying services, University email accounts, human resources, University Property and other tangible and intangible assets such as the University name, logo, insignia, or other identifying marks.

When campaign communications make reference to an Employee's affiliation with the University, they must include the following statement:

"The views stated in this communication are my own and do not express the position or views of Eastern Kentucky University."

Employees must not provide hyperlinks on a University website or media including, but not limited to, social media, publications, email, radio, or video, to a candidate's website or linking to other material supporting one candidate or political position over another.

Employees of the University are encouraged to participate in the political process, but are prohibited from serving in an appointed or elected position when:

- It is physically or professionally impossible for the Employee to discharge the duties of both positions;
- There would be a conflict of interest with the University;

- A specific constitutional or statutory bar exists prohibiting the Employee from serving both positions.

III. Notice of Campaigning Activity

Employees who are considering campaigning for, accepting appointment to, or holding public office shall immediately evaluate potential conflicts or work arrangements with their immediate supervisor and the Chief Human Resources Officer. For Employees seeking an elected office, the date of notification to their immediate supervisor and the Chief Human Resources Officer shall be no later than the date of filing the certification of the petitions for the office they are seeking.

Any employee who is a candidate for public office shall conduct themselves in a professional and ethical manner in accordance with University policies, applicable handbooks, and the Code of Ethics.

IV. Employee Leave of Absence for Campaigning Activity

In cases where the Campaigning Activity infringes on the employee's ability to meet the obligations of their position at the University, the employee must make arrangements with their immediate supervisor and the Chief Human Resources Officer to request a Leave of Absence. The primary consideration for authorizing a Leave of Absence is that it serves the best interests of the University.

It will be at the discretion of the University whether the Campaigning Activity may require an earlier Leave of Absence or whether the particular election campaign is having or is likely to have an adverse effect upon University operations.
